

The frog dissection

Virtual dissection:

On the virtual dissection, you saw a realistic frog dead facing up toward you

You use needles to pin the frog down then you use the scalpel to cut along the stomach and chest. Every one was say “ewww, gorse” during the fake one but surprisingly no one did that during the real one!!! Any way then you pin down the skin, then you use the scalpel again and cut along the mussel in the same place were the skin was and pin that down to.

Then you start pulling out the organs! They looked so real but then again so fake!!

After you pull out all the organs you’re done!!

Real dissection:

First you get a scalpel, a pair of gloves, and a tray. Then you get the frog. So wet with slime, so disgusted the students were. And then, you start step by little step you carefully cut off the skin with out cutting off the mussel! The students were so excited you almost couldn’t even get them to look at you!! Then as carefully as possible you cut of the mussel with out piercing the organs inside. You pull them out one bye one the organs not smelling as bad as the frog itself, when done you get to do w=hat ever you want with the frog! I personally with the handy hands of my assistant cut out the auburn colored eyes, the very pink tong, and the spine. Trying to find the brain we cut the skull in half

With out any warning we were done throwing away all the organs we just worked so hard to carefully cut out, the frog we just cut up into tiny pieces separating legs and arms from the body all that gone now on its way to the great big trash pile to call home!!

OH WELL!!!
